1. on 19 June 1951, two swept-back jet fighters were parked in the northeastern section of Brandis airfield. One of these planes had the usual light blue stripe and the other had a red stripe on the stabilizer. No additional aircraft were seen on the landing field. There was no flying in hazy weather. An additional road block was located on the Polenz-Machern road north of Polenz.
2. Two wires in line with the concrete target pit in the southwestern corner of the field, branched off toward the west and terminated in a wooden hut next to the pumping station. The wooden hut was occupied by two air force soldiers. No antenna system was seen in the restricted area. The other radio installations at the field were at their previous locations.*

- * Comment. the airfield is still occupied by a fighter regiment whose aircraft have a blue stripe on the upper edge of their rudder assemblies. The plane with the red stripe probably belongs to one of the two fighter regiments stationed in Grossenhain.
